For Growing Indoors in Water with Pebbles

GIANT PAPERWHITES

Popular, Unequaled for Winter Blooms

Nearly everyone enjoys growing this variety in the home during the Winter months, the bulbs flowering so easily in any fancy bowl supported by pebbles and immersed in water. Some prefer Prepared Bulb Fiber while others will use pots and soil with equally satisfactory results. We suggest having sufficient bulbs to permit succession plantings throughout the season from November to March. They will keep in perfect condition in a cool, dry spare room or cellar. Best results are obtained if the first planting is not made until November, and then kept in a cool room. The later the season the quicker the bulbs throw their flowers, only about two weeks' time being required during March. Not hardy outside.
